TWO BOYS JAILED FOR LIFE AFTER UNFAIR TRIAL

Two boys have been imprisoned for life for murder. The boys say they were forced to confess to the murder.

Muhamed Yasin Abdi and Daud Saied Sahal have had their death sentences commuted to life imprisonment by the Supreme Court Martial in Puntland. The two were among seven people arrested by police on 28 December 2016 in Bossaso, Puntland, following the killings of three high ranking officials serving in the Puntland administration. Five others arrested with them were executed on 8 April. The ages of all seven is currently contested. According to family members, they were all under the age of 18 at the time they allegedly committed the crime. The authorities of Puntland however maintain that they were adults.

According to the father of Ayub Yassin and the uncle of Ali Ismaeil (Ayub and Ali were among those who were executed) the seven suffered various forms of ill treatment and were detained in shipping containers for about two weeks before being transferred to a police station. They were then tried before a military court on 13 February where they were found guilty of murder and sentenced to death. They were all denied access to a lawyer during the initial trial. The defendants appealed their conviction and death sentence a month after the ruling, but the initial judgment was upheld by a higher military court.
