

AFGHAN WOMEN

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY — TOOLKIT

The Taliban is rapidly cracking down on women rights in Afghanistan. Before the Taliban took over recently, there were 3.3 million girls in education. Women were working as lawyers, doctors, judges, teachers, engineers, athletes, activists, politicians, journalists, bureaucrats, business owners, police officers, and members of the military.

Things changed drastically since the Taliban took over last year. The human rights of Afghan women and girls are in serious danger, now more than ever. This International Women's Day, let us reaffirm our commitment to support Afghan women and girls and continue to #SpeakUpForAfghanWomen.

#SpeakUpForAfghanWomen

WATCH

The struggles of Afghan women continue. Lend your voice to support them. Share these videos:

TWEET

Click on the Twitter icons below to tweet from your account.

Afghan women are the bravest. They are fighting to protect their hard-earned human rights gains. They need our solidarity and support. This #InternationalWomensDay let us reaffirm our commitment to #SpeakUpForAfghanWomen

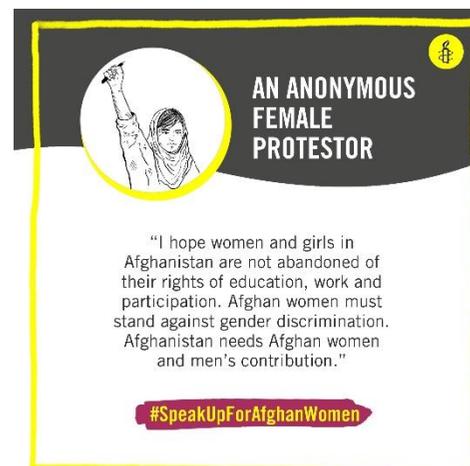

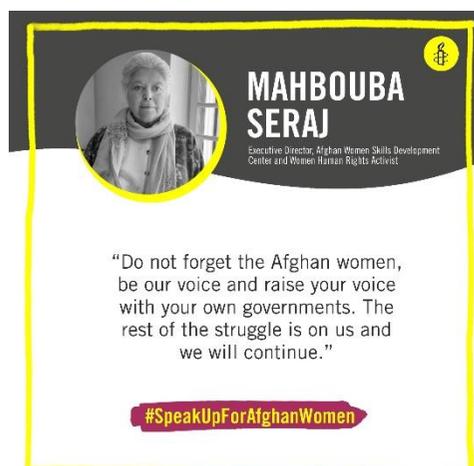

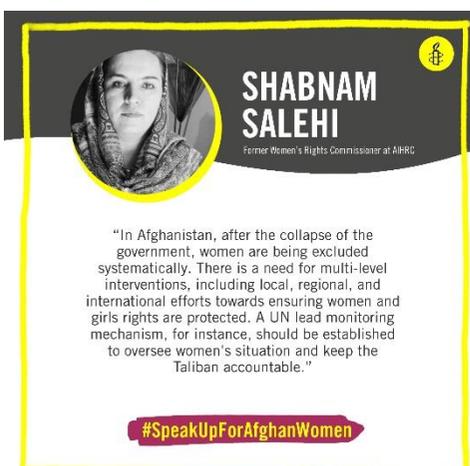

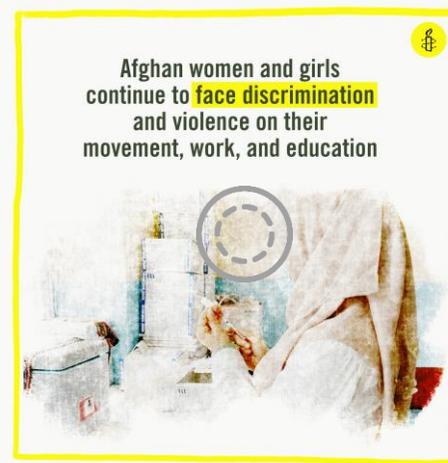

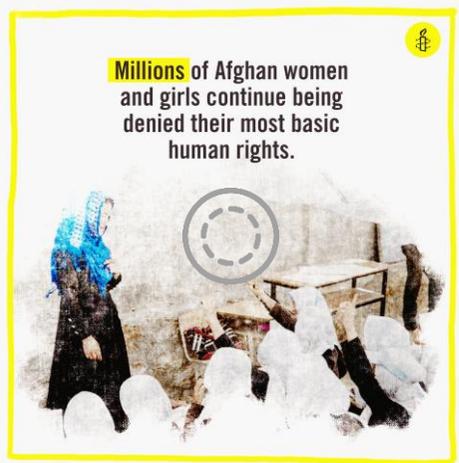

The human rights gains made in Afghanistan are almost lost. The situation for women and girls, is especially dire. Let's do our bit to ensure Afghan women are heard. #SpeakUpForAfghanWomen

Afghan women are demanding right to food, work, freedom. International community must step up to protect their rights & put pressure on the Taliban to stop discrimination and violence against women. #SpeakUpforAfghanWomen

SHARE

Click here to download the GIFs

Click here to download the graphics

READ OUR DIGEST

Amnesty International's digest "They Are The Revolution: Afghan Women Fighting For Their Future Under The Taliban Rule" features interviews with 16 Afghan women who have excelled in their chosen fields, despite immense challenges and the ever-present threat of gender-based violence.

In their own words, they describe what they consider their greatest accomplishments and discuss their fears for the future.

Click here to download the digest