BELARUS: JAILED HUMAN RIGHTS DEFENDER'S DIRE HEALTH
(UA 97.22)

Nasta Loika, a Belarusian woman human rights defender, prisoner of conscience, and educator, must be unconditionally released. She is serving a seven-year prison sentence imposed under trumped up charges of “inciting racial, national, religious or other social enmity or discord” in retaliation for her human rights work. She has reportedly suffered torture and other ill-treatment in detention.

Call on Belarus' Prosecutor General to immediately and unconditionally release Nasta Loika.
